

Hi. This is Sally Oxenhandler with your MoDOT Minute.

MoDOT is making widgets. Once a common economics term to describe hypothetical products, widgets are now a staple in the Internet world. They allow Web users to get information delivered directly to their computer desktops, Web sites, blog pages or personal Internet pages, such as Facebook and MySpace. MoDOT offers four widgets that provide information on job openings, YouTube videos, blog posts and news releases. A fifth widget provides all four subjects in one. The widgets can be found at modot.org/widgets.

As you drive Missouri highways, you probably don't stop to think about the road signs that help you get around. Here are some interesting facts about those signs:

- MoDOT produces about 130,000 signs per year.
- They last about 10 to 12 years.
- And MoDOT recycles them, saving more than $1 million annually.

That's been your MoDOT Minute. Remember to visit modot.org every Tuesday for new information.
